All Saints Day

Grace and peace in the name of our Savior!

On Sunday, Nov. 4, we will once again celebrate All Saints Sunday. While many look forward to the event, others are not quite familiar with the tradition.

What is All Saints Day? It is when the Catholic Church and some Protestant churches commemorate every saint, known and unknown. The eve of All Saints is known as All Hallows Eve, or Halloween. It is on Nov. 1. The Greek word for "Saint" in the New Testament is "hagiois" and it refers to ALL believers in Jesus Christ. In the Bible, the word does NOT mean a departed person who was extraordinarily holy in life. All Christians, if they truly express a faith in Jesus Christ, are called "saints" in the Bible (see Ephesians 1:1-2).

The whole concept of All Saints Day is tied in with the concept of the Communion of Saints. This is the belief that all of God's people, on heaven and earth, are connected in a communion. In other words, Catholic and many other Christian traditions believe that the saints of God are just as alive as you and I. Because of our common communion with and through Jesus Christ, our prayers are joined with the heavenly community of Christians.

Christians have been honoring their saints and martyrs since at least the second century AD. Initially the calendars of saints and martyrs varied from location to location, and many times local churches honored local saints with celebrations and feasts (a Methodist tradition if I ever heard one). Gradually feast days became more universal. Scholars observe that the first reference to a general feast celebrating all saints occurs in St. Ephrem the Syrian (d.

AD 373). St. John Chrysostom (d. AD 407) assigned a day to the feast, the first Sunday after Pentecost, where in the Eastern Churches the feast is celebrated to this day. In the West, this date was probably originally used, and then the feast was moved to May 13. The current observance (Nov. 1) probably originates from the time of Pope Gregory III (d. AD 741), and was likely first observed on Nov. 1 in Germany.

The vigil of the Feast (the eve) has grown up in the English speaking countries as a festival in itself, All Hallows Eve, or Halloween. While many consider Halloween pagan (and in many instances the celebrations are for many), as far as the Church is concerned the date is simply the eve of the feast of All Saints. Many customs of Halloween reflect the Christian belief that on the feast's vigils we mock evil, because as Christians, it has no real power over us. However, for some Halloween is used for evil purposes, in which many Christians dabble unknowingly. Various customs have developed related to Halloween. In the Middle Ages, poor people in the community begged for "soul cakes," and upon receiving these doughnuts, they would agree to pray for departed souls. This is the root of our modern day "trick-or-treat." The custom of masks and costumes developed to mock evil and perhaps confuse the evil spirits by dressing as one of their own. Some Christians visit cemeteries on Halloween, not to practice evil, but to commemorate departed relatives and friends, with picnics and the last flowers of the year. I encourage you during this time to think of the saints you know, and have known, and join us in worship as we give thanks to God for their witness and service.

A Great Cloud of Witnesses

"Therefore, since we are surrounded by so great a cloud of witnesses...

let us run with perseverance the race that is set before us."

- Hebrews 12:1

Dear Friends,

At pivotal moments in my life, I have felt the presence of departed loved ones in meaningful ways. When I first heard the call to ordained ministry, I felt the presence of four generations of clergy before me. When I was close to giving birth to Danielle, I felt the spirit of my paternal grandmother, who had my father on almost the same day I had Danielle. Recently, when Danielle started a new school, she had a dream in which my recently departed maternal grandmother encouraged her to "make your parents proud of you in school." Moreover, over the past year, as I have begun researching and writing a biography of my grandfather, I have felt his presence along the way.

Sunday, Nov. 4, is All Saints Sunday. It is a day that we set aside to honor members of our church who have gone home to their eternal rest. For some it is a day of sadness, for others it is a day of remembering, but for all of us it is a way of acknowledging that we are part of something larger than ourselves, a "communion of the saints" that includes the church visible and the church invisible; the church militant and the church triumphant.

Other religious traditions have more formal ways of recognizing departed saints. African and some other indigenous religions employ ancestor veneration to recognize the presence of ancestors in communal life. Roman Catholics have a sanctification process whereby certain individuals become recognized as "Saints" in the life of the church.

As Protestants, we believe in the priesthood of all believers. In other words, we believe that all believers are saints [literally: holy people] set apart to do God's will. Our departed loved ones, though they have left this life, have not left our presence. These saints form around us a great cloud of witnesses, praying for us and cheering us on as we run the race before us.

Some of the departed saints of Annandale have left tangible reminders of their presence: the Little White Church, the cemetery, Wright Hall, Hughes Hall, and

"We are part of something larger than ourselves, a 'communion of the saints' that includes the church visible and the church invisible; the church militant and the church triumphant."

the many memorials around the church. Other saints in our lives are tangibly remembered: grandmother's necklace, grandfather's bible, little Billy's laugh, or Sarah's smile. These reminders encourage us that though our time here is finite, we can leave an eternal dose of love and grace in the lives of those we love.

On All Saints Sunday, let us feel the presence of the great cloud of witnesses, let us remember that we are a part of the communion of the saints, and let us be encouraged to follow their example and run with perseverance the race that is set before us knowing that we will all meet again someday.

Blessings.

We Love Our Pastors! October is Pastor Appreciation month and AUMC is blessed to have four wonderful pastors! Why not take a moment to show them how much they mean to you. Here are some suggested ways: 1) Send a letter, write a poem or a prayer; 2) Ask for their prayer needs and then pray for them regularly; 3) Be openly responsive to their preaching and teaching; 4) Say Thank You to them personally for all they do for our church community. By showing your appreciation, our Pastors will be empowered and our church will be better for it, too.

Charge Conference meets Nov. 15: The Annual Charge Conference will be held at AUMC on Thursday, Nov. 15, 7:30 p.m. The Church Council members are the voting members at the conference, but all members are welcome to attend.

Led by Gail Pemberton, volunteers sew special baby bonnets using women's cloth handkerchiefs. Donations of women's cloth handkerchiefs (white only and no smaller than 10 1/2" or larger than 12") are welcome and can be brought to the church office. The handkerchiefs should be clean and can include embroidery and lace. Volunteers are invited to join the Baby Bonnet Ministry! It's easy and fun.

Nominate a Veteran: Decorate A Vet is seeking nominations of veterans who can use support. The organization is sprucing up and decorating the outside of Veterans' homes for the holidays. Please nominate Veterans, caregivers and Veterans' families that would benefit from Decorate A Vet via the Facebook page. For more information visit <http://www.DecorateAVet.org> or <http://www.facebook.com/Decorate.A.Vet>.

Cold weather is coming: A collection is underway for mostly men's winter coats, sweatshirts, stocking caps, jeans, socks, underwear, and waterproof gloves. Women's winter clothing will be taken, but most of the homeless are men. Items should be clean without holes. Label each item with gender (men or women) and size. Place donated clothes in the boxes under the coat racks before Nov. 9. The clothing will be distributed to homeless people in Washington, DC. For more information or to volunteer, contact Dan Evans at 571-334-6223 or danevans@frontiernet.net.
